Inhalt:

The student

- is lead to recent research goals and achievements in the field of bioinorganic chemistry.
- evaluates and assesses the basic theories, principles and concepts of bioinorganic chemistry in compliance with a research oriented master course.
- deepens his knowledge in special topics of bioinorganic chemistry that are in the research focus of the involved research groups of the department depending on its own choice.
- performs practical studies and small research projects regarding topics of the preparative, mechanistic or more biological bioinorganic chemistry in an advanced level.

Lernziele und Kompetenzen:

The student

- can explain and apply basic theories and principles, as well as specialized and in-depth knowledge in the fields of metalloenzymes and the interaction of metals with DNA and RNA.
- can explain, apply and reflect upon the inorganic chemistry aspects in medicinal chemistry and toxicology.
- can explain, apply and reflect upon the theories, terminology, specialities, boundaries and different schools of bioinorganic chemistry critically and in depth.
- can manage the preparation of bioinorganic models, their characterization as well as their application in mechanistic studies.

- can carry out bioinorganic research projects largely independently using a wide range of bioinorganic theories and is able to reflect upon the gained results.
